"Working Together, Works"

In the spring of 2021 several members of the Billings Gem and Mineral Club met with the BLM office in Billings, Montana. The purpose of the meeting was to find a way for collectors to collect the popular Bear Canyon Black and White Fortification Agate and most importantly collect, cut, polish and market the agates legally.

The response of the BLM was to make the area a rockhound collecting area! The BLM Geologist is in the process of mapping the area. The first step in this process to make this a collecting area (with a small collecting fee or maintenance fee). As a club, the Billings Gem and Mineral Club have volunteered to help maintain the area. Working together as the BLM with the club have, they are both well aware the process will take several years to become completed, as it makes its way through all the government red tape.

This good example of what a group of club members can do when they work together with public lands officials. I believe this can be accomplished all over the western United States.

Thriving In Our Hobby

Even though a lot of changes in our lives have been happening all around us these last couple of years due to the covid, one thing clearly stands out that is very enlightening. It's the fact that there are lots and lots of people out there wanting to join rock and gem clubs, and wanting to start new ones in their areas where there hasn't been a club before.

This should tell us something, that the rock and gem clubs on behalf of recreational rockhounding is prospering. This should also remind us that for the hobby to flourish and enjoy fieldtrips, we all need to roll up our sleeves and begin working on projects to do what we can to help keep our collecting areas open. Don't wait until there is a problem with a collecting site to act, be proactive.

The Billings Gem & Mineral Club members are an inspiration to everyone. A huge heartfelt Thank You to all of them for leading by example what all of you can help accomplish by working together with public lands management. Include Doug True's ALAA President's Message in your club and federation newsletter. Make it a part of your members meeting to discuss it. When you do, I know members will realize they too can work on projects like this too.

Having known so many of you over the years from clubs, to federations and the AFMS, I know what good people you all are. You are in abundance. You are outstanding in what you as individuals are to your clubs and the hobby. Your educational programs and your shows continue to open the doors to the fun and wonderful world that inspires so many to recreational rockhounding and in a lifelong relationship.

So get on out there, meet your public lands management people, so more of them can meet you and get to know you. Explore what you can help them with and how they can help you in a partnership. This will only add to the good reputation of rockhounds everywhere, that we are great people to work with and good people to support on public lands.
